FOUR ARTICLES IN SPECIAL MEETING WARRANT

Four articles are included in the warrant for the special Town Meeting to be held on Nov. 25.

Articles (1) asking additional money to construct the Glen Road School, is the one the meeting was called to vote upon originally. Four other articles were submitted, two for the Wilmington Ford Sales, asking purchase of town owned land and rezoning of another parcel of land; one asking a zoning change to allow the Housing Authority the right to build a housing project; and one asking a zoning by-law change which would allow gas product firms to locate here.

The first two, and the gas product article, did not have sufficient correct signatures to permit their being placed in the warrant without approval of the Selectmen. The selectmen voted to allow the first two, but not the other "in the best interest of the Town."

The articles in the warrant read as follows:

ARTICLE 1. To see what amount the Town will vote to raise and appropriate in addition to such amounts as have been previously raised and appropriated, in order to construct and originally equip and furnish an elementary school building on land owned by the Town on Glen Road, and determine how the same shall be raised, whether by taxation, by transfer from available funds, by borrowing or otherwise, and to determine how same shall be expended, or do anything in relation thereto. On request of the Elementary School Building Committee.

ARTICLE 2. To see if the Town will vote to authorize the Board of Selectmen to sell to Wilmington Ford Sales, Inc., or its nominees a whole or part of a parcel of land owned by the Town, situated on Main Street, and determine the price at which the same shall be sold, said parcel being shown as Parcel No. 9 Assessor's Plat No. 39, and bounded and described as follows.

WESTERLY by the Boston and Maine Railroad six hundred forty (640) feet, Northerly by the center line of the Maple Meadow Brook, Easterly by Main Street one thousand seventy five (1075) feet, or do anything in relation thereto.

BUILDING COMMITTEE DECLARES NO CONTRACT DECISION MADE

The Glen Road Building Committee released the following statement this week:

No official decision has been reached by the Elementary School Building Committee with regard to awarding contract for the Glen Road School. To date, the town is holding the three deposit checks of the three lowest bidders, none of whom has been rejected. As soon as funds become available within the thirty day period as prescribed by law, and with the advice of the Town Counsel, an award will be made.

It is the earnest wish of the Building Committee that the townspeople will be present at the Special Town Meeting, to be held November 25th, so that it will be possible to start construction immediately.

Five Navy medical officers and 15 corpsmen from the aircraft carrier USS Lake Champlain operated in teams to care for the sick and to dispense medical supplies to the victims of Spain's worst flood in a half-century, at Valencia, in mid-October.

Oscar C. Benson To Speak Here

Oscar C. Benson of the Railroad Community Committee of Greater Boston will address the Wilmington Grange #268 next Wednesday evening, November 20th. Benson is Assistant Engineer, Maintenance of Way, Boston and Maine Railroad. His subject will be "present regulations of the transportation industry, its effect on people everywhere and what can be accomplished for the future."

The Railroad Community Committee is one of 24 such committees located in the 14 northeastern states and is sponsored by the Eastern Railroad President's Conference.

WILMINGTON TREADS OVER NORTH READING 20-13

On Monday, November 11, Wilmington beat North Reading 20-13 in a thrilling game. It was well played by both teams with Wilmington winning 20-13. North Reading got the kickoff and when Wilmington got the ball they went all the way for the touchdown with Johnny Amaro scoring it on a two yard plunge the extra point was then kicked by Warren McFeeters to make it 7-0 Wilmington's favor.

During the first half North Reading was in scoring position twice, but both times failed. In the first quarter they were within ten yards of a touchdown, but an intercepted pass by Wilmington killed that threat. Then late in the second quarter North Reading was within the ten yard line again and was threatening to score when the half ended with the score 7-0 Wilmington ahead.

In the second half North Reading came back to where they had left off at the end of the first half. When they got the ball they marched down the field and got a touchdown. Then they rushed for the extra point and got it to tie the score at 7-7. Wilmington started to roll again. They marched down the field led by the running of Amaro and Billy Rooney. Then Rooney plunged through the middle for the touchdown to make it 13-7 Wilmington's favor as McFeeters missed his try for the extra point. Then in the last quarter Wilmington was on the move again with Rooney scoring the touchdown on a plunge. McFeeters then kicked the extra point to make it 20-7 Wilmington's favor.

Then with only a few minutes left North Reading scoring its final touchdown but missed the extra point to make the score 20-13 Wilmington's favor and that's the way it ended, the final score 20-13.

There were other highlights of the game and many exciting moments. Among these highlights were many fumbles at crucial points in the game, and a fine intercepted pass by Joe Casey of Wilmington.

The winners of the Chicken Dinner, given by Parker's Restaurant, were Joe Casey, Warren Cormier, and Billy Rooney. The next and final Wilmington game is against Tewksbury on Thanksgiving, November 28, at Tewksbury and Wilmington will be trying to make its record 5-3 for the season as it is now 4-3 with one game left, so we'll all be rooting for Wilmington on Thanksgiving Day.

WILMINGTON'S J. V.'S BOWL OVER NORTH ANDOVER 20-14

by Philip Tupper

On Tuesday, November 5, Wilmington High's J. V.'s beat North Andover J. V.'s 20-14 in a real thriller. Led by Joe Barry, Wilmington's end who scored two touchdowns, Wilmington J. V.'s won its second game in a row. In the first period quarterback John McCabe of Wilmington threw a long pass to Joe Barry who went all the way for a touchdown. The play went for eighty yards. Then a pass to Barry in the end zone made the extra point and the score was 7-0, Wilmington's favor.

Then when Wilmington got the ball again John McCabe threw another pass to Barry who went all the way for a touchdown. This one went for sixty yards. The extra point was rushed for but was missed. This made it 13-0 Wilmington's favor. Then when Wilmington got the ball they started a march for the touchdown with it ending on a touchdown plunge by Frank Monroe. John McCabe made the extra point on a quarterback sneak to make the score 20-0 end of the half.

At the beginning of the second half North Andover came to life and started a touchdown march. They got the extra point to make the score 20-7 Wilmington's favor. Then when they got the ball again they started another touchdown drive rolling. They then got the extra point again on a rush and this made it 20-14 Wilmington's favor.

This ended the scoring for both teams and the game was a see-saw battle the rest of the way with neither team scoring again, the final score being 20-14 Wilmington's favor.

MOST UNUSUAL

Seaplant Corporation of New Bedford accomplishes a unique service when it sends representatives down the Atlantic Coast and as far away as Prince Edward Island, to collect bales of Iris Moss. Believe it or not, a standardized and purified colloid or stabilizing agent is extracted from the seaweed by the company and reduced to a dry powder which is completely water soluble.

Food and drug companies manufacturing such indispensable items as toothpaste, chocolate milk, ice cream and blancmange or milk puddings, purchase this substance. Why? For inclusion in their individual products. It seems that the powder will suspend the cocoa to make chocolate milk non-settling, give proper body to toothpaste, form tender delicious milk gels at low cost, help to make ice cream smooth, etc.

Just one pound of this most unusual product will prevent the chocolate from settling out of 1650 quarts of chocolate milk; it is said also to improve "mouth feel" of certain foods, like relish among other things.

CHOWDER KING

Jimmy's Harbor Side Restaurant is fast becoming one of Boston's greatest points of interest for vacation travelers as well as native Bay Staters. It is believed to be the only restaurant of its type in the world built directly over the ocean floor. Located at Commonwealth Pier, the restaurant has a magnificent oceanic view from which Logan Airport and the South Boston Navy Yard can be seen.

Owner and manager James Doulos, started the enterprise in 1923 directly upon his arrival to Boston as a young Greek immigrant. The original restaurant catered to 17 fishermen; today hundreds of Boston's top business travel clear across the city to eat at Jimmy's which is presently being expanded to accommodate dozens more.

This year, Mr. Doulos won Holiday Magazine's Annual Distinctive Dining Award along with Locke-Ober's; the Ritz-Carlton Hotel; and the Coonamessett Inn, Falmouth. Also he has been crowned "Chowder King" - a distinction brought about following his serving of thirty gallons of New England fish chowder to the entire U.S. Senate and forty gallons to 400 U.S. Mayors at the annual Mayor's Conference in Washington.

In building the new Pontiacs for 1958, engineers chalked up 88 completely new features, starting with a new body, new chassis, and new, larger engine.

Last nite I was looking thru Time magazine and my eye caught a picture in which were shown ten automobiles. It was a quiz to guess what the names of these cars were. They were of the vintage of 1902 to 1920. There were some pretty famous names represented such as Ford, Stutz, Stevens-Duryea, and several others. In their day they were the last word. Even I can remember the thrill of seeing a Stutz Bearcat and dreaming of owning one. Today I question that I would take a dozen Stutz Bearcats if they were given to me with a bonus of a thousand dollars a piece. I would be laughed off the street. That was 27 years ago. Today there are much more sporty cars, longer, lower, faster, and sleeker for 5 times the money. Most people think it's ridiculous to keep an automobile 5 years.

The same people are horrified if after 20 years any one suggests that they should replace the oil burner in the basement or burner and boiler. Yet the boiler and burner replacements would be less than the oil burner cost 20 years ago, and what a difference in the results. They are just as dramatic as the difference between a Stutz Bearcat and a Ford Thunderbird.

The Winkler low pressure oil burner will keep you warm and happy and pay for itself in fuel savings in a matter of three years, and return 10 to 15% on your investment. There is no return on the investment in a car, nothing but original investment, repairs, gasoline, tires and depreciation.

Show how smart you are by giving your pocket-book a break.

Call us at REading 2-3290 and we'll show you how to please yourself.

ONE THIN SLICE, COMING UP!

Wilmington parents will find out next fall whether half a loaf is better than a whole one. Superintendent of Schools John Collins announced this week that he is making plans for classroom distribution next fall, and the plans are for a half session schedule.

Ten additional classrooms will be needed in the fall. This year the superintendent and the school committee spent a great deal of time investigating every possibility to locate the four outside rooms, the children are now using. The hope of locating another ten outside classrooms is obviously, at best, a feeble dream. No other course is open except to schedule half sessions. The only relief will come when the Glen Road School is completed. January 1, 1958 is a conservative estimate for a completion date, and that is if the additional money asked for at the special town meeting, November 25 is voted.

If the town votes against the request of the building committee, the committee will have to revise the plans of the school. This will involve additional architect and engineering fees, as well as probable labor and material increases in the interim, as even the most pessimistic soul sees no depression looming in the next few months.

Whatever is saved may well be lost by another delay in the building of this needed school structure. The time for a change in the design of the school has long since passed. If high town officials had failed to find with the building plans they should have made their doubts known to the committee in charge when the plans were first submitted. To wait until the contract is about to be awarded and then decide that the town cannot afford a "monument" of this type, is ridiculous. If the decision was made earlier, action of some sort should have been taken.

A growing community blocking school building during a peak baby boom, particularly a community that is building and trying to sell "better class" homes, is treading a treacherous path. If Wilmington is more interested in attracting industry than people, a low tax rate is more vital. If an industry is going to move into town, the tax rate will be of prime importance. If a householder considers buying a home, facilities are of prime importance, and first on the list will be school facilities.

Wilmington will attract industry in any event, with the coming of Route 28 and the promise of sewerage as well as other obvious attractions.

But Wilmington will repel humans if it places penny-pinching above a sound education.

DON'T OVERLOOK "SMALL" ECONOMIES

Most of us, when we think about cutting government spending, think in terms of such huge items as the defense budget, foreign aid, agricultural supports and so on. And these are mighty important—any water in them should be squeezed out to the last drop.

But this shouldn't blind us to the possibilities of making savings of varying amounts in a far longer list of government activities. Enough "small" budget reductions can add up to really big money, even by federal government standards.

Parcel post is a good example here. It is a government business enterprise, which operates in direct competition with private, taxpaying business enterprises. To make a bad matter worse, it has been run at a loss during most of its life—which means that it is subsidized by all taxpayers, whether or not they use the service.

It is still being run in that fashion. Many indirect costs, such as contributions to the government retirement fund, are not reflected in rates. And these indirect costs are as much a legitimate part of carrying on the service as the direct costs.

It is reliably estimated that increasing parcel post rates to cover indirect costs would make possible a saving of $50 million in the 1958 fiscal year. That kind of saving is eminently worth while. And no one can say that the necessary rate increases would work an injustice on everyone. It would simply cause those who use the service to pay the proper price for it—instead of having everyone else pay part of the bill.

DOLLARS FOR DEMOCRATS DRIVE ON ITS WAY

October 11 marked the start of the "Dollars for Democrats" Drive in Massachusetts. Democrats rang doorbells all across the state asking for a dollar or more to support their party. Democratic "Women on Wheels" of Massachusetts, the women's Democratic organization formed last spring, organized the state wide drive and had representatives throughout the state heading their community committees, with the aim of obtaining a lot of small contributions to enable their party to compete with the well financed Republicans.

Paul M. Butler, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, praised as vigorous and vital the work of Massachusetts party members in preparing for the Dollars for Democrats drive. "In a tour which has taken me to most of the States in the Union during the last few weeks, I have had an opportunity to see Dollars for Democrats preparations in almost every phase and I can assure you the work in Massachusetts stacks up very well indeed with what is going on elsewhere," Mr. Butler said in a prepared statement.

"In the efforts of our Party members here to provide financing through a door to door campaign seeking many small gifts, instead of a few large ones, we have a grassroots program that is both vigorous and vital."

Good citizenship requires political contributions by each individual to the Party or candidate of his choice. The more such small gifts there are, in support of a party, the healthier the party will be.

In this connection I urge the widest possible support of legislations which would give tax credit for $10 contributions to political parties.

Diving takes real skill and caution, warns the Institute for Safer Living of the American Mutual Liability Insurance Company. First find out whether the water is deep enough and whether hidden rocks, submerged crags and sand bars are lurking beneath the surface to produce a hazardous diving area.

SAFETY TIP: When you're looking for a place to stop - for a picnic or an over-night lodging - drive well to the right of the pavement and maintain a reasonable speed, says the Triple-A. Signal your intention to stop or turn off the road. Let the fellow behind you KNOW what you intend to do.

Safety Tip: Hold your own lane on the highway. Frequent lane-changing is dangerous, especially on high-speed roads. You may save a few seconds by dodging in and out of traffic, but not enough to be worth the risk, says the Triple-A.

PREVIEW OF THANKSGIVING. Sportable Radio:

For those who like to take their entertainment with them, Pontiac offers in 1958 a "sportable" car radio. A transistorized model that can be slipped out of its position on the instrument panel and carried by a convenient handle, it has its own self contained batteries and speaker which are automatically shut off when installed in the car. A locking device prevents unauthorized removal. It may be had with a special carrying case.

Pontiac's deluxe electronic radio this year is newly transistorized in the audio output stage which means it is even more trouble-free because the vibrator power transformer and rectifier have been omitted. Power operated antennas and rear seat speakers are other Pontiac radio accessories. The deluxe radio has newly styled controls.

Two monkeys, kept as pets, escaped from their cage in the cellar. They went to work on the electric wiring, stripped off the insulation, and left the wires bare before they were discovered. Fortunately nothing serious resulted. You may not have monkeys as pets, but little children can get into mischief. Keep them away from electrical devices, radios, television sets, and especially guard electric outlets. The danger of shock is real and serious.

Fifty-nine years ago (1898), Spanish rule ended in the Pacific during the battle of Manila Bay. In the few short hours after Commodore George Dewey told the captain of his flagship, USS Olympia, "You may fire when ready, Gridley," the Spanish squadron of ten ships was destroyed at the loss of only six American lives.

KNOW YOUR NAVY

What Labor Day Means To Me

By James P. Mitchell, U. S. Secretary of Labor

LABOR DAY was originated by Peter McGuire during the last century with two purposes in mind—honor and leisure. It was a day on which to pay homage to the achievements, aspirations, and genius of American working men and women. It was also a time for rest and recreation at a place in the calendar that lacked a major holiday.

To these purposes—in the light of our national experience since Peter McGuire's day—we may now add a third: RELIGIOUS.

IN THE UNITED STATES it is impossible to celebrate a holiday like Labor Day without recognizing its religious implications. To honor the working people of our nation is to recognize their dignity as persons—and to do that is to assign them a religious value.

For the soul of man is made after the image and likeness of God—possessing the Godlike powers of knowing and loving. In this respect all men are equal. There is no difference between rich and poor, master and servant, ruler and ruled, "for the same is Lord over all." All men must love and respect that human dignity which God Himself treats with reverence.

TO SET ASIDE a time of rest is to recognize the creative nature of man—for leisure and creation are related. We read in the Bible of God's mysterious "rest" after the creation of man. "He rested on the seventh day from all His work which He had done."

But aside from such basic reasons, the vast struggle in the world today between powers that would enslave man and powers that would free him leads us to see more clearly than ever before the fundamentally religious nature of our way of life and of the concepts that underlie our society.

AS DID our Founding Fathers, we believe in one supreme, personal God—creator and preserver of the world—upon whom all reality, including man, is dependent. We believe that every man is endowed by God with all those unalienable rights to fulfill a God-given destiny according to his own enlightened conscience and in his own chosen walk of life.

This nature, this way of life, and these concepts are expressed daily in the lives of our working people who are freely working out their God-given destinies. To honor them is also to honor these ideals.

TO REST, to honor, and to pray is the fitting way to observe this uniquely American holiday.

† Paulist Feature Service, Washington, D. C.

Cortland, N.Y., Democrat: "Don't shoot a government man until you can see the white of his crop control papers. That just about sums up the attitude of today's poultry farmers who are running family-sized layouts. Like the embattled farmers of 1776, they want no part of government meddling."

NICKEL IN GUIDED MISSILES

Guided missiles make extensive use of vacuum tubes containing nickel and nickel alloy elements because of the ability of such tubes to operate at temperatures higher than transistors.

Whitefish, Montana, Pilot: "Reliable information shows this: Uncle Sam's biggest source of revenue is the individual income tax - 33 billion dollars a year. And whether you remember or not, we every-day up and down the street citizens pay the big end of it. (Oh yes we do). Sure the rich are soaked, but there simply aren't enough of them."

Arrange Flowers Easily

At this time of the year the homemaker finds flowers more readily available for decorating the home. Garden flowers in great variety are available in all sections of the country.

However, as beautiful as the flowers appear growing in their natural state, it is often difficult to arrange them attractively in vases. Here is where transparent plastic household wrap can give assistance.

Except for the flat bowls in which flowers are actually floated, the flower arranger will find that pieces of plastic wrap wadded up and placed in the vase will help hold the stems of flowers in the pattern desired. Even a few flowers can be made easily into an attractive, professional arrangement.

As to this handy transparent wrap, it is now available in a new box. Featuring the colors forest green and chartreuse, the new package has the cutter bar at the bottom of the box. This leaves at least two inches of the wrap readily available at all times and helps to eliminate the "lost end" problem. The homemaker will find that her summer flower arranging will be simplified by the use of transparent plastic wrap and the wrap itself will be so much easier to use in the new box.

WILMINGTON FIRE ASSOCIATION HI-LITES

Last week I stated that I would have more to write about as there would be a meeting last Tuesday night. There were 15 members present and the refreshments were in charge of Charlie Ellis and myself. The committee reported Progress and the reports were accepted as stated. Plans for the Christmas Basket Fund were discussed and were to be given at the next meeting. The prize committee stated that the books were selling very well and it is our hopes that they will all be sold. Our annual donation to the Community Fund was brought up and voted in favor of, also it was voted to back the request from the Booster Club and to wish them luck in their endeavor to help the athletic program in the Town.

Some of the Hunters returned on Wed. for the day and from the reports I've had passed on to me they (up till this writing anyhow) haven't had too much luck in getting any deer. Verne did say, however, that he was able to get fairly wet tho, but they will be going back to join the others over the weekend. All we can do is wish them luck so some of those fish stories can be jolted to a stop. Verne also tells me that one of the boys knocked one down but that they didn't know whose cow it was.

Chief Kane's drill has done quite a lot of good. It seems that you can drive by the station any day now and see the boys putting it to a test in their practice drills, that are going on between the hours of 1 p.m. till two daily. Chief Kane brought a lot of good points out and passed them along to us here in the Dept. during the drill sessions he recently concluded for the interest of the men here in your Fire Dept.

The Dept. has had a rather quiet week as far as fires go, but has been kept jumping with the ambulance, which has moved rather steady.

Still nothing new on the new man for the replacement needed to fill out the shifts here, altho I understand only one man took and passed the physical and that is only rumor and nothing more. Well, I guess seeing as how this is a short week as far as getting the column in the hands of the paper, I will close for now and leave one thought with you and that is to remind you "that matches in the hands of a youngster can be dangerous" so the moral of my thought is to keep them high enough out of their reach and you will have no worries.

See you next week

THE LIONS ROAR

Hello again. Last week I pulled a boner and forgot to remind you of the Donut and Cake Sale to be held on November 11 at Tony's Shop on Main St. My apologies to the committee in charge of that affair, and let me now remind you of the dates that are in the offering as of this writing.

First of all the Zone Ladies night at Stoneham, which is to be on Nov. 23, promises to be a real great affair for every Lion and his Lady who attends. Jim Doherty is our Club Representative and has outlined the affair pretty well. King Lion Cushing has asked this club membership to make a sincere effort to attend and give Jim and Zone Chairman App all the support they can get. The Committee has been working hard to make this a success, and like I said, it should really be one.

Larry Cushing, the supervisor of athletics in the Willington school system, and by the way, brother to our own King Lion, was the guest speaker at last Wednesday's meeting and gave a very interesting talk on Safety Education for the school children. He also had films depicting the various phases of his work with the youngsters, and after their showing there was a question and answer period which gave those present a chance to find out some of the things that may have been bothering them. Hats off to Larry for an interesting evening.

King Lion George presented Larry with a certificate in appreciation.

The meal served by Chris and Millie, once again was very tasty and plentiful. These two Ladies do a fine job in their culinary art.

Just Wondering: Wonder why the fine for the talltwer wasn't carried out?

Where Bob Lawrence ever learned to sing and who told him it could be called singing?

Why Bill Tanners wife passed out the false info on Bill for last week's column?

If every member will make an effort to make their ball returns so Dave Bergstrom can get squared away?

If Pete conveyed our wishes to Maude and hopes that she gets well again in a hurry, and if she got the cake he was to take to her?

Why Kid Furious had to check with his Mrs. last Wed. night, not henpecked, I hope?

Get well wishes are extended to those members who were not present last meeting and a welcome back to Al Epstein who was there again after his illness. King Lion Cushing asks me to remind you once again that the Nov. 27, meeting will be cancelled in lieu of the Zone Affair on the 23rd.

Well, until next week, I'll be seeing you.

Editor:

In the last few years, Wilmington has come a long way with its schools and the townspeople can enjoy a feeling of pride as they send their boys and girls through those open doors, "The doors of Education".

Remember when the school basketball teams had to play their games in the Grange Hall because the ceiling in the school gym was too low and there was water in the school cellar. It has recently been said, "We don't need elaborate schools for an education". True, but adults do not need coffee breaks either, but how few deny themselves a few minutes to relax.

This is true of the new athletic field and the new trend in schools in general. Passing through a neighboring town recently, about 6 p.m. I noticed the school buses delivering youngsters to their homes: it was long after dark, but the second of two sessions had just ended. I was glad it was not Wilmington.

Our athletic field is one of the best in the state and is undoubtedly paying the town back 100 percent for all the money spent. Every day this field is in use. That's right, every day it is given a work out by energetic boys and girls, under the supervision of our able coaches. There have been as many as 150 youngsters in action on this field at one time. Even after school hours, the field is occupied, still under authority of the school department. The fact that these boys and girls are being kept off the street even if only for an hour or two, helps keep delinquency out of the town.

What makes a boy a better man than being a good sport? He can "take it" when he loses, and not rub it in to the loser when he wins. This of course, also applies to the girls.

Now that the "field sport" season is coming to a close, the skating rinks are ready for flooding as soon as the freezing weather arrives. I guess our field did cost a good many tax dollars, but for my dollar it was a good buy. Anything worth having usually comes with a high price tag.
Hats off to Larry Cushing and his staff of fine coaches under their supervision I feel that we are getting full value for each dollar spent.

Sincerely,
Mari Gold

As My Garden Sleeps

By Mari Gold

A week ago Sunday (when it rained so hard) I went for ride. Traffic was so light I had a wonderful time observing gardens and it was surprising how much color remained in some of them. Marigolds, Petunias and even some geraniums are still blooming in places and are bright spots of color. The blooms were still in evidence but the plants themselves were pretty well withered, which pretty well proves that annuals live for only a few months at a time. This is because these plants cannot do two things at a time. In the cases of late bloomers, the flowers took over what strength was left in the plants.

Even in southern states where the climate is warm all the time, the gardeners must plant seeds in succession in order to keep his garden blossoming. Here in the north however, Jack Frost puts an end to our planting season.

As I rode through the various streets, another thing which struck me was the prevalence of the friendly looking orange pumpkin. It seems that every house had one sitting on the steps or porch, a fad which has caught on fast in the last few years. At one time the larger pumpkins (cow-pumpkins the farmers call them) was used only for the purpose of feeding cows and when cooked they were fed to hogs. In a relatively short time, the pumpkins has become a popular fall vegetable used as a fall decoration. This helps the farmer who used to grow them for cow feed. It allows these men to acquire a few extra pennies out of his field of pumpkins. The larger pumpkins are not very good vegetables for table use as they are very coarse and stringy.

For cooking purposes, you should choose the smaller sugar pumpkin. This is propagated and grown for table use only. The use of the pumpkin for decoration has grown so that seed growers have them listed in catalogs as "Jack O Lantern" pumpkins and the ones for cooking as "Sugar or New England Pie".

Some of the pests I have failed to mention so far are the little deer and infield mouse. These two can really make pests of themselves during the winter season. If you mulch too early, they will build their nests in the mulch making a nice warm winter home for themselves. They will feed upon your plants or their roots while they are snowed in. If you are bothered with field mice before you mulch, cover the garden with dry arsenic of lead and then mulch. In this way you will destroy the mice. Another pest is the rabbit, which will gnaw the bark of young trees. An easy method of controlling them is to place a collar of tarpaper around the tree trunk about 18 inches or more wide, as the rabbit will stand up and eat above a narrower one. They don't like the spray, "Dog Off", obtained at seed stores, but that doesn't last too long in stormy weather.

Newly planted shade trees are often injured by the sun during the first winter. This is called sun scale and is prevented by wrapping the trunk with burlap or paper tree wrap. It is especially necessary on smooth bark trees. If you are on a pruning spree, remember, Forsythia and Lilacs, as well as any of the spring flowering as they have set their buds for next year and if pruned now will lose all the blossoms and have a colorless shrub in the spring.

Our house plants have been in the house long enough now to be getting used to the change and should be looking alive. Most of our modern housewives like the foliage plant best as it grows with little care. Dish gardens, Ivies, Sansenarles Cacti and rubber plants come under this heading.

The foliage plants need only moderate light and water. Sponge the leaves once a month with tepid water. This acts like rain, washing the dust off so that the plant may breathe. One of my favorite foliage plants is the "Maranta" it is a tropical plant. They need very little sun so make excellent pot plants for end tables or any place away from a window. They are tuberous rooted and the foliage is marked with dark spots. It closes its leaves at night. They do have a white flower which is more interesting than beautiful. These plants require a rich soil and plenty of moisture, but moderate light. This plant may be known to you as "The Prayer Plant" deriving its name from closing its leaves at night. The spots on the leaves resemble "Rabbit Tracks" in the snow, so the plant is also known at "Rabbit Tracks".

If any of my readers would like me to answer any questions or write on any particular plant, just drop a note to the editor.

BREAKTHROUGH

A nose cone, which is called the "Titan", can now be designed to re-enter the earth's atmosphere after a 5,000-mile flight without burning up. Two years of intense study by top researchers at Avco Manufacturing Co., Lawrence, brought about a theoretical breakthrough on the 5,000-mile intercontinental ballistic program.

This progress was influenced largely by Avco's shock-tube experiments in the laboratory. Prior to that time, little was known about the field of super speeds and super temperatures. However, laboratory duplication of shock waves permitted the development of the Titan nose cone design. Avco's total contract for design, development and prototype manufacture of Titan nose cone cost $11,308,359. The major problem has been to find a way to keep the nose cone from burning to a cinder as it plunges to earth with its hydrogen bomb warhead as speeds of thousands of miles per hour. It now appears possible to dissipate this tremendous energy as heat, thus allowing a successful re-entry.

COLORFUL CONVERSATION

Color telephones and telephones with special features or special associated equipment, for both home and office use, are growing in popularity.

The New England Telephone & Telegraph Co., operating in Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont, reports that at the rate color telephones have been going in so far this year, more than 110,000 will have been installed by year's end. In 1956 the company installed about 87,000 and in 1955 (when color telephones became available in quantity), over 51,000.

The range of telephone colors includes ivory, green, red, yellow, beige, gray and (if counted as color) old-time black. Telephones come in two models - one to stand on desk or table, the other to mount on the wall.

There is a growing public interest in the telephone equipped with a night light which burns with half-brilliance until the handset is lifted to make a call, when the light comes on automatically at full brilliance to illuminate the dial. An "on" and "off" button on the telephone provides a manual control of the light.

Still another special feature of growing interest is the telephone with a self-contained amplifier, controlled by a button on the telephone, to raise the volume of sound to desired levels above normal. The volume-control telephone meets needs not only of people with impaired hearing but of people with normal hearing having to use the telephone in noisy locations.

Finding wider use also are the speakerphone which, with an associated microphone and loudspeaker, makes it unnecessary to hold the telephone while using it, and the automatic answering and recording set (sometimes called the automatic secretary) which answers the telephone when unattended and which will record messages left by persons calling.

Available also and filling needs in particular situations are telephones with a row of buttons to permit switching from one line to another and to hold one line while calling on another, and special audible or visual signalling devices, such as loud-ringing bells, gongs, sirens and small lamps.

To meet the needs of business organizations particularly, two new telephone equipment developments are on the way. One of these is a dial-operated private branch exchange switching system, designed for the medium sized business whose requirements for central office trunk lines do not exceed 10 and whose requirements for private branch exchange stations do not exceed 60. Some Massachusetts firms have already ordered the new switching systems, which will be available the latter part of this year following extensive field tests.

The other equipment development on the way is the Bell System's dataphone, for transmission of technical data or text over voice communications channels on private lines or on connections through the regular long distance telephone network. The dataphone is compatible with integrated data processing machines. A number of Massachusetts business organizations may participate this fall in nationwide trials of this new transmission medium.

HEALTH FOR ALL

Mistaken Identity:

Like the good citizen you are, when the chest x-ray bus came to town, you stepped up and had your annual chest picture taken. You felt perfectly well, but you had learned that people can have tuberculosis without knowing it.

You didn't feel so good when you got the report. You were advised to have another larger x-ray. Did that mean that you had TB after all? You didn't waste any time getting to your doctor. It was tough waiting to find out what the big x-ray would show. And there was a shadow all right. The doctor pointed it out on the film. You hit bottom. TB... a hospital... what about the family... the job?

"Now don't rush off," the doctor ordered. "We've a lot more things to find out before we decide. I'll tell you frankly it looks like TB, but it could be a case of mistaken identity."

You learned, some new words. The doctors explained that there are at least ten other conditions that can sometimes be confused with TB: pulmonary fibrosis, bronchiectasis, histoplasmosis, coccidioidomycosis - and some more names you couldn't pronounce, much less spell. You learned that skin tests, including a tuberculin test, serologic tests, biopsy, and more x-rays could be taken to find out for sure.

The doctor started by getting a history of places you had lived all your life. Some fungus diseases resembling TB on x-ray are prevalent in certain areas of the country, he explained. He might get a clue. And he did. The tests checked out.

You've since learned how to spell and pronounce histoplasmosis - your legacy from the Middle West. You had a benign case - one that didn't bother you - some time ago. It cleared up, but left its shadow behind to give you a few bad moments of worry.

You learned quite a lot from the experience, a lot about modern scientific diagnosis, about fungus diseases, about how it feels to face tuberculosis, and how good it feels to know for sure that you're healthy. You make a silent but solemn resolution to do everything possible to keep yourself that way.

JOHNS-MANVILLE NEWS

Higher operating costs, a decline in sales of some of our more profitable items, and start-up expenses for six new plants under construction continued to hold down company earnings in the third quarter as in previous quarters this year. V. B. Padham, Local Plant Manager said today.

In reviewing third quarter operations, Mr. Padham pointed out that earnings were down despite the fact that company sales in the third quarter reached $85,235,000 to establish a new sales record for any quarter in Johns-Manville history. Sales last year in the third quarter were $81,489,000. Consolidated earnings were $5,733,000 for the third quarter this year compared with $6,968,000 for the same quarter last year.

Further indication of the narrowing gap between sales and earnings are evident in the total figures for the first nine months of this year compared with last. Mr. Padham said. For this year to date, sales were $233,307,000 and earnings were $14,347,000 compared with sales of $228,848,000 and earnings of $18,973,000 for the first nine months of last year.

Wages, salaries and employee benefits paid out by Johns-Manville in the third quarter were $33,490,000 compared with $32,215,000 for the same period last year.

HEART NEWS

("Living With Your Heart" is written and distributed weekly as a community service by the Massachusetts Heart Association).

Drastic changes in the amount of type of fats consumed cannot be justified as a means of reducing the incidence of heart attacks or strokes, but a balanced diet "with caloric intake adjusted to overcome or prevent obesity" is important to the health, the American Heart Association's nutrition committee has reported.

In recent years, the evidence has tended heavily toward the opinion that a diet admittedly too saturated with fats has been the underlying cause of many heart attacks. The committee, while not denying this possibility, has recommended "an immediate and comprehensive investigation of diet" as a factor in heart ills.

Medical men have been citing the drop in cardiovascular death rates of European nations affected by fat shortages in World War II as proof that there is a correlation. The AHA committee report points out that deaths from heart disease in Britain began declining a year before fat rationing was instituted, and an upward trend reappeared in 1943, despite the fact that fat restrictions continued in 1947.

The committee's studies indicated that there has been no significant change in the amount of fats eaten by the American people over the past generation or so, and that institutional surveys show roughly the same fat intake now as in the 1890's.

Greatly improved recording of death causes may account for some of the alarming rise in our heart statistics, and vital statistics from nations with other methods of reporting, understaffed health departments and low autopsy rates are likely to be misleading, so it is not easy to arrive at a clear global picture of the heart problem and its causes. Data on the dietary habits of various peoples is difficult to analyze.

The committee pointed out, also, that the fats people eat and the fats in the blood are not automatically associated.

"There is not enough evidence," the committee wrote, "to permit a rigid stand on what the relationship is between nutrition, particularly the fat content of the diet, and atherosclerosis and coronary heart disease." It was suggested, nevertheless, that many Americans should cut their fat intake to prevent obesity. Diets providing 25 to 30 per cent of the calories from fat, rather than the current 40 to 45 per cent, can still provide palatable meals.

The committee suggested a diet providing more protein from lean meat, fish, poultry and animal products, cereal and grain products and a reasonable selection of fruits and vegetables, with a fat content sufficient to meet only caloric and essential fatty-acid demands.

Such a diet can best be outlined for you by your family physician.

Other Accessories:

Pontiac's Hydra-Matic transmission and power steering, among the most popular of accessories, have both been improved this year. The automatic transmission has been modified to operate with maximum efficiency with the new, larger engine, and improved to shift more efficiently at any temperature.

Dual exhaust systems, featuring a muffler and resonator in each, power window lifts, and power brakes are other popular accessories. Added also is a door lock seat back latch, a decor option for Chieftan models, new adjustable inside sun visor, and optional radio rear seat speakers for convertibles and station wagon. Notable is the convenient location of clearly identified accessory controls on the instrument panel.

COUNCIL Message

Last year there was a song, "What Will Be, Will Be." It had a cute tune easy to sing or whistle. It had a philosophy. It seemed to say we have no right, no capacity to change things. Many share this philosophy. During an electrical storm someone is certain to say, "If it's going to hit you, it's going to hit you!" Some who hold this philosophy have complete faith in God's goodness and power over the world. Others who accept this philosophy are fatalistic and irresponsible toward life.

Persons who attempt to mix the two attitudes, "faith in God's goodness" and "fatalism" defeat themselves. Such persons objected to smallpox inoculation. They reasoned, "God punished sin, people suffer with smallpox, smallpox is God's method of punishing sin, we must not take away God's weapons of punishment." Isn't it more conceivable that God would that Dr. Jenner should discover smallpox vaccine rather than that God wills that children shall die of this horrible disease? Is there anything we can do to decide "what will be?"

A prophet of ancient Israel said, "Choose You This Day Whom You Will Serve. As For Me And My House, We Will Serve The Lord!" We can be confident that anyone who deeply, confidently, believes God is helping him and does everything he can to help himself, and lets others help him, can decide in great measure What Will Be.

Traveling for miles in a "controlled" speed zone? No need to watch the speedometer constantly to avoid breaking the law if you have Pontiac's new "Safeguard" speedometer, an accessory. It sounds a buzzer and flashes a light when you exceed the speed you set by a switch.

White figures on black faces with fire orange pointers give instruments on the 1958 Pontiac maximum readability. In addition, they're recessed in ports as a protection against glare.

A sweep second hand and a self-regulating feature are provided in the electric clock for the 1958 Pontiac.

Profiles in Courage—VI

Lamar Reaped Public's Wrath
In Urging Amity, Hard Money

This is the sixth article in a 10-part digest of the book, "Profiles in Courage," published by Harper and Brothers. The author is Senator John F. Kennedy, who tells the inspiring stories of American politicians who had the courage to sacrifice party, popularity, career and ambitions for the principles they believed right.

By SEN. JOHN F. KENNEDY

From the book "Profiles in Courage," Copyright (C) 1956-1958, by John F. Kennedy. Published by Harpers.

Speaker of the House James G. Blaine was crying unashamedly. But most of those on the House floor and in the galleries on that dramatic day in 1874 were making no attempt to hide their own tears as they listened to the freshman congressman

SEN. JOHN F. KENNEDY in his simple plea for amity and justice between North and South.

All were touched by his message, but stunned, too. For Lucius Lamar was appealing in the name of the South's most implacable enemy, the Radical Republican who had helped make the reconstruction period a black nightmare the South never could forget: Charles Sumner of Massachusetts.

Sumner — who assailed Daniel Webster as a traitor for seeking to keep the South in the Union; whose own death was hastened by the caning administered to him on the Senate floor years earlier by Congressman Brooks of South Carolina, who thereupon became a Southern hero.

Charles Sumner was now dead. And Lamar, known in the prewar days as one of the most rabid "fire-eaters" ever to come out of the Deep South, was delivering a moving eulogy lamenting his departure.

For Charles Sumner before he died, Lamar told his hushed audience:

"Believed that all occasion for strife and distrust between the North and South had passed away . . . Is not that the common sentiment—or if it is not, ought it not to be—of the great mass of our people, North and South?"

The Turning Point

Few speeches in American political history have had such immediate impact. Overnight it raised Lamar to the first rank in the Congress and in the country; and, more importantly, it marked a turning point in the relations between North and South.

It was inevitable that some in both North and South would misunderstand it. Northerners whose political power depended on maintaining the federal hegemony over the former Confederate states resisted any effort to heal sectional strife.

Southerners to whom Sumner symbolized the worst of the prewar abolitionist movement and the postwar reconstruction felt betrayed.

Such attacks, however, were in the minority. It was obvious that moved by the strange forces of history and personal destiny, the man and the occasion had met that day in Washington.

Who was the man?

Lucius Quintus Cincinnatus Lamar was, in 1874, a "public man." No petty issues, no political trivia, not even private affairs, were permitted to clutter up his intellect. No partisan, personal or sectional considerations could outweigh his devotion to the national interest and to the truth.

He was not only a statesman but also a scholar and one of the few original thinkers of his day. Henry Adams considered him to be one of "the calmest, most reasonable and most amiable men in the United States."

SEN. LUCIUS LAMAR of Mississippi risked "political death" to heal the wounds of North and South after Civil War.

" . . . Go Down in Blood"

His youth was spent on a plantation, and Lamar later became famous for his tales of the rural South. Emory College, which Lamar attended, was a hotbed of states' rights. Elected to Congress, while Southern unionists were vainly seeking to stem the section tide, Lamar was violently pro-Southern.

"Others may boast," he said on the floor of the House, "of their enlarged and comprehensive love of this union . . . I confess that the promotion of Southern interests is second in importance only to the preservation of Southern honor."

Some years later he said that he never entertained a doubt of the soundness of the Southern system until he found out that slavery could not stand a war. In a letter he wrote: "Dissolution cannot take place quietly . . . When the sun of the Union sets it will go down in blood."

The wind had been sown; now Lamar and Mississippi were to reap the whirlwind. Of the 13 descendants of the first Lamar in America who served in the Confederate armies with the rank of lieutenant colonel or above, seven perished in the war. Lucius Lamar served much of the war as a diplomatic agent for the Confederate government.

No state suffered more from carpetbag rule than Mississippi. Lamar came to understand that the sole hope for the South lay not in pursuing its ancient quarrels with the North but in promoting conciliation.

This, in turn, could only be accomplished by making the North comprehend that the South no longer desired—in Lamar's words—to be the "agitator and agitated pendulum of American politics."

Sumner's death furnished the occasion for which Lamar had long waited to hold out the hand of friendship to the North. Everything conspired to insure his success.

New Kind of Statesmanship

His memorable eulogy of Sumner was Lucius Lamar's first opportunity to demonstrate a new kind of Southern statesmanship. But it would not be his last.

Riding a wave of popularity and the 1876 return to Democratic rule in Mississippi, Lamar was elected to the United States Senate. But even before he moved from the House, Lamar again outraged many of his backers by abandoning his party and section on another heated issue.

The Hayes-Tilden Presidential contest of 1876 had been a bitter struggle, apparently culminating in a close electoral-vote victory for the Democrat Tilden. Although Hayes at first accepted his defeat, his lieutenants claimed the closely contested states of South Carolina, Louisiana and Florida—and then attempted to procure from the carpetbag governments of those three states doctored election returns.

Congress determined upon arbitration by a supposedly non-partisan electoral commission—and Lucius Lamar agreed to the solution.

But when the commission, acting wholly along party lines, awarded the disputed states and the election of Hayes with 185 electoral votes to 184 for Tilden, the South was outraged. Four more years of Republican rule meant four more years of Southern bondage and exploitation.

Accused of Cowardice

Lamar was accused of trading his vote and his section's honor for a promise of a future position; he was accused of cowardice.

Lamar could not now repudiate the findings, however shocking, of the commission he had helped establish. He believed that only force could prevent Hayes' inaugural and that it would be disastrous to travel that road again.

Unmoved by the storm of opposition which poured forth from Mississippi, Lamar braced himself in preparation for the most crucial test of his role as a statesman.

No other high-ranking Confederate officer had yet entered the Senate. Nor had many senators forgotten that nearly 20 years earlier Lamar was an extreme sectionalist congressman.

As Senator Lamar, ill and fatigued, rested at home throughout much of 1877, a new movement was sweeping the South and West, a movement which would plague the political parties of the nation for a generation to come—"free silver."

The Moses of the silver forces, William Jennings Bryan, had not yet appeared on the scene; but "Silver Dick" Bland, the Democratic representative from Missouri, was leading the way with his bill for the free coinage of all silver brought to the mint.

Inasmuch as a tremendous spurt in the production of the Western silver mines had caused its value in relation to gold to shrink considerably, the single purpose of the silver forces was clear, simple and appealing—easy, inflationary money.

A Popular Cause

It was a tremendously popular cause in Mississippi. The panic of 1873 had engulfed the nation into the most terrible depression it had ever suffered, and the already impoverished states of the South were particularly hard hit. The South foresaw itself in a state of permanent indebtedness to the financial institutions of the East unless easy money could be made available to pay its heavy debts.

Although the Democratic party since the days of Jackson and Benton had been the party of hard money, it rushed to exploit this new and popular issue.

Lamar, the learned scholar and professor, approached the issue somewhat differently than his colleagues. Paying but little heed to the demands of his constituents, he exhausted all available treatises on both sides of the controversy. His study convinced him—possibly wrongly—that the only sound position was in support of sound money.

On Jan. 24, 1878, in a courageous and learned address—his first major speech on the Senate floor—Lamar rejected the pleas of Mississippi voters and assailed elaborate rationalizations behind the two silver measures as artificial and exaggerated.

A Deliberate Slap
Praise for Sen. Lamar's masterly and statesmanship analysis of the issue emanated from many parts of the country, but from Mississippi came little but condemnation. On Jan. 30, the state legislature adopted a memorial omitting all mention of Lamar but—in an obvious and deliberate slap—congratulating and thanking his colleague (a Negro Republican) for reflecting "the sentiment and will of his constituents."

The memorial deeply hurt Lamar, but the legislature was not through. On Feb. 4, a resolution was passed by both houses instructing Lamar to vote for the Bland silver bill, and to use his efforts as spokesman for Mississippi to secure its passage.

Lamar was deeply troubled. He knew that the right of binding legislative instructions had firm roots in the South. But writing to his wife, he confided "I cannot do it; I had rather quit politics forever."

One week later, the Bland silver bill came before the Senate for a final vote. As the debate neared its end, Lamar rose unexpectedly to his feet. With apologies to his colleagues, Sen. Lamar explained that, although he had already expressed his views on the silver bill, he had "one other duty to perform; a very painful one, but one which is nonetheless clear." He then asked that the Mississippi legislature resolutions be read.

"I Cannot Pass It"

The clerk droned the express will of the Mississippi legislature that its Senators vote for the Bland silver bill, all eyes turned toward Lamar.

A massive but lonely figure, Lucius Lamar spoke in a voice which "grew tremulous with emotion, as his body fairly shook with agitation."

"Mr. President: between these resolutions and my convictions there is a great gulf. I cannot pass it . . . Upon the youth of my state whom it has been my privilege to assist in education I have always endeavored to impress the belief that truth was better than falsehood, honesty better than policy, courage better than cowardice. Today my lessons confront me. Today I must be true or false, honest or cunning, faithful or unfaithful to my people. Even in this hour of their legislative displeasure and disapprobation, I cannot vote as these resolutions direct."

Senators on both sides immediately crowded about his desk to commend his courage. Lamar knew that his speech and vote could not prevent passage of the Bland bill by a tremendous margin. Yet his intentional and stunning courageous disobedience to the will of his constituents was not wholly in vain. Throughout the North the speech was highly praised. Distrust toward the South, and suspicion of its attitude toward the national debt and national credit, diminished.

The People Backed Him

The people of Mississippi continued their support of him, in spite of the fact that Lamar had stood against their immediate wishes. The voters continued to give him their support and affection throughout the remainder of his political life. He was re-elected to the Senate by an overwhelming majority, later to become chairman of the Senate Democratic caucus, then Secretary of the Interior and finally Justice of the Supreme Court.

At no time did he, who has properly been termed the most gifted statesman given by the South to the nation from the close of the Civil War to the turn of the century, ever veer from the deep conviction he had expressed while under bitter attack in 1878.

"The liberty of this country and its great interests will never be secure if its public men become mere menials to do the biddings of their constituents instead of being representatives in the true sense of the word, looking to the lasting prosperity and future interests of the whole country."

UNITED FARMS START EXPANSION

A milk plant expansion and modernization program at a cost of over a half million dollars has been started by United Farmers of New England at its Boston plant in Charlestown.

The major plant expansion will begin about November 1, next to the present plant structure. When completed the dairy will have over an acre of milk plant processing area, believed to be one of the most modern milk handling systems in the nation. A modern flow system, from incoming milk trailer tank trucks, processing, packaging and bottling through the fleet of delivery trucks, will be streamlined by a new conveyor system. New 10-thousand-gallon refrigerated storage tanks, the only ones in New England, will provide greatly enlarged plant capacity.

Details of the new plant project were reported at the 38th annual meeting of United Farmers Saturday, by Stanley W. Beal, of Newton, general manager. Held in Morrisville, Vermont, the meeting was attended by over 300 members, delegates, and guests. Delegates represented the association's 2200 dairy farmer members in the 3 northern New England states.

In approving the project, Beal stated that the directors had given a solid vote of confidence in the continuing growth of the cooperative's sales in the eastern Massachusetts area, and in the future of the City of Boston.

Reflecting considerable growth in the dairy cooperative's sales, work began recently on a new type loading and unloading dock for wholesale service trucks.

The new concrete and steel truck fleet dock is 190 feet long and 24 feet wide, providing a permanent berth for the wholesale delivery fleet. A new ordering and accounting system, with modern business machines, is coupled with the plant expansion program for improved customer service.

Under study for the past 2 years, the plans prepared by Cowell and Roberson, New York architectural and engineering firm, specializing in modern food-handling plants, Walter L. Ritchie of Malden is the contractor.

A new laboratory and other features of modern food-handling plants are included in the plans. Modern tile floors and walls will enable the finest sanitation management.

Sales of United Farmers were reported at over 21 million dollars last year, an increase of 2.6 million dollars over 1956. Over 150 million quarts of milk are handled by the organization annually.

A board of 21 farmer directors determines the policies of the association. In addition to wholesale service, United Farmers maintains home delivery service to the greater Boston and Framington, Mass., area.

MASSACHUSETTS COUNCIL MESSAGE

"Some . . . seed fell on rocky ground . . . and when the sun rose it was scorched, and since it had no root it withered away."

And other seed fell into the soil and brought forth grain." Mark 4:3-8

When our family reached our vacation place this past summer, we found our lawn brown and bare from the prolonged drought. A few weeds here and there were green. But in one corner one plant of Queen Anne's Lace was lush and flourishing, filled with blossoms and buds. Because it was such a welcome contrast to the dead grass in the rest of the lawn, my wife begged that it be spared.

Any of us can live with poise and satisfaction when life goes easily and problems are few. It is when problems are difficult, or when we face pain and sorrow, that our spiritual roots are brought to the test. If in good times our spiritual roots have been put down deeply, there will be resources of the spirit available when the drought comes. But if our roots are shallow, the testing times will find us spiritually bankrupt.

One would never have known from our Queen Anne's Lace that there was any drought at all, for its roots reached down to the deep subsoil. We too can reach the rich subsoil of the spirit by opening our inner lives to God through prayer and worship and fellowship.

SPRAY MACHINES REPLACE HAWK AND TROWEL

New Fireproofing Method

Speeds Erection, Cuts Costs of Manhattan Building

A good illustration of how new construction methods are being used to speed erection and help fight skyrocketing costs on major building projects in New York is the Deering-Milliken Building under construction at 1026 Sixth Avenue. One of the more prominent of these methods is the use of machines to spray a vermiculite compound directly to the underside of the metal flooring. Machine placement is a radical departure from the time-honored and time-consuming techniques of hand application with hawk and trowel.

Vermiculite is a lightweight mineral form of mica, widely used to replace sand in plaster or concrete. Largest producer of the product is Zonolite Company, Chicago.

Begun October, 1956, the Deering-Milliken Building is an 8-story structural steel building with prefabricated metal floors instead of conventional reinforced concrete. On a job of this type, fireproofing would usually be applied by hand like ordinary plaster to a false ceiling made of lath suspended below the floor. Machine placement directly to the underside of the flooring eliminates the expense and time consumed in constructing a suspended ceiling for fireproofing purposes and make significant savings in construction budgets.

Fireproofing must be able to resist fire for three hours according to New York City fire regulations. Demonstrations proved that the new vermiculite compound, which is used both for fireproofing and sound conditioning, applied directly to flooring by machine placement exceeded New York's stringent fire laws by one hour. Contractors, the City's building department, and representatives of the plastering union, then agreed to permit the unique method of application.

Machine placement, now widely used in other parts of the country for plastering and fireproofing, will never eliminate the skilled hand worker. However, Zonolite Company states that machine replacement can substantially cut plastering time in large buildings where time and cost are critical factors. In many areas, machine plastering is providing vigorous competition in housing projects as well.

The Zonolite fireproofing material is pressure sprayed directly to the underside of the metal floor through a heavy hose and nozzle attached to a pumping unit. The material used in the Deering-Milliken Building contains a patented adhesive which insures a permanent bond to the steel floor. Spray application leaves a smooth surface which resists fire and, by way of a dividend, helps sound-condition the structure.

LIVING WITH YOUR HEART

("Living With Your Heart" is written and distributed weekly as a public service of the Massachusetts Heart Association).

By
Charles A. Gates
Executive Director

Massachusetts Heart Assoc. In a decade of close association with the problems of the human heart, I've often wondered how one faces up to the dread words, "you may have a heart condition."

Now I know. It happened last October, and it wrenched me from a sound sleep shortly after midnight - a sharp recurrent pain that seemed intensified by the night and literally shook me like a leaf. I was scared. I thought I was going to die.

I took an anti-acid tablet; it didn't help. Finally the pain disappeared, leaving me limp and gasping. I was ordered into a hospital, where I spent ten long days living on a starvation diet and doing a lot of hard thinking.

The doctors described their treatment as "prophylactic" as well as "therapeutic" preventive healing. Its less pleasant features - a low-calorie diet and cigarette ban - were hard to take for a hearty eater and compulsive smoker, but tranquilizers made it easier.

The pains disappeared. The doctors called it "angina pectoris."

I am 59 years old, 5 feet 6 1/2 inches and on that night in October, 1956, when I was stricken I weighed a little over 159, with too much of it around my middle.

Today I weigh 144; my friends tell me I look better and I feel just fine.

Why bare the details of an ordeal shared by thousands? For this reason - to drive home the importance of a Massachusetts Heart Association axiom: "Fortunate is the man who has a mild heart condition and knowing it, learns to live with his heart."

Dr. Paul Dudley White, past president of the Massachusetts and American Heart Associations, said this on subject:

"It has been said that it is a good thing to have a little heart trouble, because knowing it, you take better care of yourself and live longer. Mere longevity, however, is not man's aim in life, for to have a weak and sickly constitution is a real misfortune, worse than the heart condition itself."

"Often the most bothersome symptoms suggest heart disease to you when there is none at all. In order to be sure, get a proper check-up from your doctor. It is equally important to follow his advice, being as careful as is necessary but not overcareful. Courage, patience, optimism and equanimity are often the best prescription of all, in addition to whatever program of rest and activity, diet and medicine your doctor may recommend."

"Heart disease, even when quite severe, may allow a long life of usefulness. In fact many persons, young and old, live long enough to get over much of the heart trouble that may have affected them, either in body or in mind."

This is a comforting thing to know when chest pain strikes. To this day, I'm not positive I had real "angina." I just don't know - but I do know that I'm grateful for the experience.

CENSUS SEEKS ADULT EDUCATION INFORMATION

Comprehensive national statistics on the number of persons attending adult education classes will be available for the first time as the result of special questions to be asked in the October Current Population Survey, according to Supervisor James W. Turbitt of the Census Bureau's regional office at Boston, Mass., which will participate in the survey.

The special questions on adult education are being asked at the request of the U.S. Office of Education. The major aim of the questions is to obtain an accurate count of persons participating in education programs which provide opportunity for adults and out-of-school youth to further their education, regardless of their previous educational attainment. A secondary aim of these questions is to obtain an estimate of the types of adult education and the types of institutions and agencies conducting them.

Questions on regular school enrollment will also be asked in the October survey as well as the usual monthly inquiries on employment and unemployment.

Current Population Survey information was collected locally during the week of October 14 by properly identified Census employees.

THROUGH
STAMPS

by H. A. Vlewer

Why Collect Stamps?

Postage stamps are little pieces of colored paper issued by the different governments of the world which you and I buy from the Post Office and stick onto our mail to show that postage has been paid.

Once the parcel, letter, or card has reached its destination the stamps affixed thereon have done their duty and they are usually thrown away. But not always.

Many children and grownups too, find these little colored pictures interesting and just cannot discard them. These people collect stamps and their curiosity is aroused oftentimes which leads them to inquire about many of their treasures. "What is the picture on this stamp?" or, "Where does this stamp come from?" "Where is Tana Touva?" or "Montserrat?"

A search for the answers to the above questions, and a thousand others leads a stamp collector to a wealth of knowledge and enjoyment.

Stamp collectors have a high sounding name for themselves. They are known as Philatelists. The hobby of stamp collecting is called Philately - pronounced Fil-ate-lee, with the accent on the second syllable.

Philatelists number many millions throughout the countries of the world. In our own country, it is estimated that there about twelve million of us.

Some collect stamps of all countries and are known as general collectors.

Some collect the stamps of only one country, usually their own. These people are often said to specialize.

Others, again, collect stamps which deal with only one subject, such as birds on stamps, animals, ships, etc. who collect Religion on stamps. Collectors in this class are called topical collectors.

Among those who collect religion on stamps, perhaps the best known is Francis Joseph Spellman, Cardinal of New York. Part of his marvellous collection of the Vatican issues, was on exhibition at the recent "Tabul" stamp exhibition in Israel.

Topical collecting is very popular today, perhaps because it allows such a freedom of expression, and choice.

Everyone likes to travel and see new places, new things. Through the medium of our stamp album we can travel this wide world over and over again while relaxing comfortably in our favorite chair at home. We can get acquainted with our neighbors in other countries, and see their natural wonders, their man made wonders, too. Above all, stamps can help break down racial and national barriers.

So next week let's begin seeing the world through our postage stamp lens.

Cynthia Peters of 623 Woburn Street, Wilmington, is one of five girls from the Research and Advanced Development Division, Avco Manufacturing Corporation in Lawrence, entered in the "Miss Eye Research" contest sponsored by the Merrimack Valley Lions Club. Pictures of Miss Peters and other contestants from the Lawrence area are being displayed this month in the Lawrence business district, and the title will go to the girl receiving the most votes in this Lions Club campaign to raise funds for eye research. Miss Peters is a stenographer with Avco.

FOR FOUR

1958 will see the Italian Line's outstanding luxury liners, the M.V. Vulcania and M.V. Saturnia, making four calls at Boston. The Vulcania will leave on Jan. 25 and April 17; the Saturnia on September 17 and Dec. 4. This decision followed closely on the heels of the improvements recently made at Commonwealth Pier, South Boston, now considered one of the world's finest combination passenger and cargo terminals.

The voyages will run between Boston and the Mediterranean Ports starting January 25. Captain Carlo Fava, Boston District Manager for the Line, said that the decision to definitely schedule the service for 1958 was due, in part, to the increase in activity at the Port of Boston.

He said: "We believe in this Port and we know it is a good port from which to sail. Conveniences and services for both the passengers and the Line are high-grade. The Italian Line has had longtime ties with the Port of Boston and we have many friends in New England."

Memory Seat:

A memory seat control which will return the front seat to a pre-selected position is a 1958 accessory. On two-door models with selector lever in "park" or "neutral" tilting forward the back of the front seat automatically moves the front seat forward to facilitate entrance or exit. Return of the back of the seat to normal position actuates the memory control and returns the seat to its pre-set position if the ignition switch is "on". If the ignition switch is "off" the seat returns to its full rearward position. An override switch permits normal operation of the four-way power seat.

Dr. DeBarcellos Passes Away At 65

Dr. Manuel DeBarcellos of Ballardvale St., passed away Monday at the New England Baptist Hospital. Dr. Barcellos, who had been in ill health for some time, had practiced on a limited scale since moving to Wilmington nearly two years ago. He recently took part in the flu vaccine program in which the town employees were inoculated.

He leaves a wife, Felisima, a son Frank of Somerville; two daughters, Mrs. Adeline DeCosta and Mrs. Mary McKaba, both of Wilmington.

A Solemn High Mass of Requiem will be held at 9:30 a.m. Thursday, Nov. 14.

Visiting hours tonight from 7 to 10 at the Szulewski Funeral Home, 93 Otis St., East Cambridge.

FIRM FOUNDATION

A 110-acre tract of land in Gardner adjacent to the proposed Route 2 has been acquired by the Gardner Industrial Foundation for the development of an industrial park. Construction of the first building is expected to begin early this fall and would cost about $300,000, including $22,000 for the land.

Eugene M. McSweeney, Exec. Director of the Gardner Industrial Foundation, says the city has been requested to construct a road 32 feet in width and approximately 1,000 feet in length leading into the park.

In addition to the easy accessibility to and visibility from the projected construction of Route 2, other factors influencing the decision were availability of water and sewer facilities, availability of a rail spur, topography as level as possible with minimum cut and fill, absence of ledge, good drainage, satisfactory soil bearing capacity, and availability of power.

Heater - Air Conditioning:

Pontiac's front mounted air conditioning this year is combined with the heater to provide year-round climatic control in the car. Either can be used, depending on the temperature, and new outlets have been designed for better flow of conditioned air to all sections of the passenger compartment.

The 1958 heater is dash mounted, replacing the former under seat type.

"Safeguard" Speedometer:

For safety, Pontiac has a speedometer with buzzer and warning light to tell the driver when a pre set speed is exceeded. The switch has 25, 35, 45, 55, 65 mph and "off" positions. When a pre-selected speed is exceeded, the warning buzzer and light operate. Range is 9 mph above the set speed.

Bids Opened For New Standpipe

Bids were opened last Thursday evening for erection of the new standpipe off Hillside Way. The low bidder was the Chicago Bride and Iron Co., with a bid of $72,400. High bid of the five was $86,968.

The new standpipe will raise the storage capacity to 1,600,000 gallons, nearly tripling the present capacity. This gives the town a standpipe capacity greater than the minimum rated pump capacity for both wellfields, and will provide more than adequate pressure for fire-fighting men during a prolonged drought.

Dual, hooded head lamps and dual, hooded tail lamps mark the 1958 Pontiacs. Horizontally mounted, the head lamps have a diameter of 5-3/4 inches instead of the previous 7 inches, but have higher wattage and provide almost 50 feet more low beam seeing distance along the right-hand side of the road. All four head lamp units are lighted when the upper beam is used.

Home buyers can get a good idea of the strength and stiffness of the walls of a house by checking the kind of sheathing used in its construction. Strength is a measure of the ability of a wall to stand up against a load, such as a high wind, without collapsing. Stiffness is the resistance of a wall to bending under loads which may cause trouble like plaster cracking.

Repeated tests of the Forest Products Laboratory of the United States Department of Agriculture have shown that wood has greater strength and stiffness than other sheathing materials.

The aircraft influence on automotive styling shows in the new delta wing front fender ornaments that help make the 1958 Pontiac distinctive. Each ornament has twin fusiform projections extending rearward from the winged sections. They measure 7 inches from wing tip to wing tip and 11 inches in length. Twin windshields continue along the fender.
